MOSCOW, Feb. 8. — A book by V. Minayev entitled "The Secret Weapon of Those Doomed" bares the record of U.S. espionage activities against the Soviet Union since World War II, according to a review today in the government newspaper, Izvestia. The Izvestia review charged that U. S. Intelligence laid the ground work for postwar espionage by infiltrating European anti-fascist underground organizations. It said Allen Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency and brother of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, took over the German wartime espionage apparatus after contacting Adm. Walter Wilhelm Canaris, Nazi wartime intelligence chief.

Izvestia also listed, among "American espionage agencies" the Vatican, UNESCO, the World Health Organization, the UN Children's Fund, bourgeois nationalist and Zionist organizations. It charged that while Soviet armies were fighting the Nazi onslaught, the U. S., British and French embassies in the Soviet Union were active in spying and committing sabotage.

Izvestia said U. S. spies included Robert Magidoff, Anna Louise Strong and others. It declared that a U. S. assistant naval attache, Lieut. Dreyer, was an espionage agent and charged that in 1947 Soviet security organs had broken up an espionage ring organized by assistance naval attache Roulard, attached to the U. S. Consulate in Vladivostok.
